VOLUNTEERISM!

January 1984

FROM THE DIRECTOR

Dorothy Lehman Hershberger '50
Director of Alumni Relations

With the coming of autumn this year, the campus has never looked more beautiful — and not just because of the fall colors. The new Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center, now in full operation, adds a new dimension to campus life. The center offers alumni and friends returning to campus a large swimming pool, racquetball courts, exercise and fitness facilities, a gym and sauna. With the removal of the old gymnasium and the construction of the Detwiler Plaza on the uphill side of the center, the campus has a newer, more spacious, and beautiful look than ever before.

The Alumni Office has benefited from the new ideas and insights brought to Juniata by Marjorie J. Love '80, Assistant Director of Alumni Affairs, who is enthusiastic about designing programs for younger alumni. The combination of a recycled class of 1950 elementary ed. major and a class of 1980 energetic, concerned, business major will cover a lot of ground for Juniata alumni.

Having just returned from a business trip with my husband across the United States during which we also held two alumni functions, I realize more than ever why a Juniata degree is so valuable. I heard many alumni crediting their liberal arts backgrounds with giving them flexibility, creativity, and preparation for their lives and careers.

It is nostalgic and rewarding to be a part of the Juniata staff. The college has never been in a better situation, and the trustees, faculty and staff are working together to make it even stronger in the years ahead. We care about our alumni because you are the best advertisement of what a Juniata education means. Let us hear from you; come to visit whenever possible, especially for reunions, homecomings, and special events; and plan to join us for alumni club events in your area.

By Kenneth M. Kornick

It was one of the first major policy addresses of the new administration, and Americans gathered before their televisions to hear President Reagan read what they expected to be an economic riot act. In many ways, the address was predictable, with the President promising drastic reduction or elimination of various domestic programs to reduce federal spending. What was not anticipated was Reagan's call for a resurgence of voluntary service among American citizens to take up the slack left by the federal government.

Many were taken aback by the novelty of the President's suggestion and the apparent insouciance with which it was delivered. Others looked on it as merely a device for shifting responsibility of domestic programs from the federal government to the general populace. But still others saw in the President's words an appeal to a basic ingredient of our national character which may have been set aside by our affluence, but was never really lost.

Volunteerism is an ingrained part of our national fabric because, much like other elements of the American consciousness, it emerged and flourished from the unique circumstances of our national experience. Much like the "pioneer spirit" and "Yankee ingenuity," volunteerism represents a perceived set of values or an approach to doing things that Americans regard and take pride in as distinctly theirs. What began over two centuries ago as a means of community problem-solving for colonists hewing a new way of life out of the wilderness, has grown and changed over the years to help succeeding generations of Americans meet the new exigencies of life in a country unlike any other.

Today, the American voluntary spirit expresses itself in literally thousands of ways. From local church benefits and civic programs to massive world-wide volunteer organizations such as the American Red Cross, from boy scouts participating in a community clean-up to partners in a major law firm performing pro bono work at a neighborhood legal service, the voluntary spirit in America persists as a distinctive feature of our way of life. That it has become an almost unconsciously accepted part of our national psyche is evident in the way mass appeals to the American public are frequently couched in terms of the public spirit and sense of community unique to us; the "Come on, America, let's pitch in!" appeal of the national anti-littering campaign is an excellent example. On the most basic level, the American tradition of voluntary action is one of the best manifestations of what we are and what we stand for as a people because it expresses our will to do the best for ourselves by joining with others to do the best for our society.

As non-profit institutions with specialized needs in the area of voluntary service, colleges and universities have long benefited from the American tradition of volunteerism. Unlike most voluntary causes and organizations who find their volunteers wherever they can, colleges enjoy a convenient built-in pool of prospective volunteers in their alumni bodies, whose familiarity and ready identification with the institution more than compensate for their relatively limited numbers. Whether it be a purely emotional or nostalgic bond, or a more pragmatic sense of the impact that an institution has exerted on their lives and careers, it is this attachment that alumni feel for their alma maters which imparts a special quality to the voluntary service that they render to colleges and universities. It is, literally, a tie that binds them.

Over the years, Juniata College has benefited immensely from such voluntary involvement and support, which have been out of all proportion to the size of the college and its alumni body. In fact, the tradition of volunteerism at Juniata took on a special flavor right from the beginning with the involvement of many Brethren families in the establishment of the college. Since then, members of succeeding generations of many families as the Brumbaughs, Swigarts, and others who were instrumental in the college's founding have continued the unique family tradition of service to Juniata, often as salaried faculty and staff but just as often as volunteers in a variety of alumni and other programs. The tradition is commemorated each year at the college's Founders Club dinner when one of the families or individuals is singled out for special recognition of their long record of service to Juniata.

As the college has grown and attracted an increasingly diverse student body, so also have the ranks of Juniata's alumni volunteers grown and taken on new dimensions. But the changing face of volunteer activity at Juniata and other institutions derives largely from newly emerged needs of the colleges themselves as they face one of the most challenging periods in the history of American higher education.

As an alumnus, trustee and parent, Charles G. Brown, Jr. '59 has spent a great deal of time and energy in volunteer service to Juniata. Brown, who is President Judge, Court of Common Pleas, Centre County, recently addressed a group of high school students who were attending Juniata's Careers in Law and Government Service Day. Several alumni, students and staff members participated in this special program designed for students interested in undergraduate preparation for law school, government service or graduate school in public administration/public affairs.

At one time in the more carefree past, some colleges took a more cavalier attitude toward volunteer involvement, often regarding it primarily as an effective means of keeping alumni and friends in good spirits and close — but not too close — to the college. As a result, the expectations for voluntary service were often not very taxing on the volunteers nor very crucial to the institution itself.

In many cases where volunteer service has been utilized as nothing more than a kind of alumni pacifier, the colleges have lived to regret their short-sightedness and are now struggling from behind to marshall their volunteer resources. On the other hand, those colleges who have traditionally placed a high premium on the meaningful involvement of their alumni and friends are now in the position of having an experienced cadre of volunteer leaders and plenty of younger foot soldiers at their disposal.

Whatever the size and experience of their volunteer contingents, all institutions of higher education have suddenly found themselves squarely up against a serious dilemma that most are unable to address effectively with their present internal human resources: maintaining enrollment levels in the face of a declining number of traditional college-age students through the mid-1990s.

In the intensifying battle for fewer and fewer prospective students, it is already becoming clear that the best way for an institution to arm itself for the fray is with a well coordinated network of alumni volunteers in their prime recruiting areas to assist admissions personnel in locating and referring students, making contacts and performing necessary follow-up work. For the rest of the 1980s and well into the 1990s, the name of the game in higher education will be maintaining enrollments, and those institutions with well established pockets of regional alumni volunteers are already a step ahead of their less organized competition.

But the student recruitment game is not the only area in which colleges and universities are looking to their alumni and friends for support. At Juniata, the Alumni Council recently introduced a new program to broaden the base of volunteer service in several vital areas.

The Advancement Associates is an operational plan whereby alumni and friends are tied into the leadership and standing committee structure of the Alumni Council to expand the volunteer capabilities of the college in such areas as admissions, the Annual Support Fund, promotion, regional alumni clubs and career planning and placement. With the Advancement Associates program in place, Juniata will be in the enviable position of having a volunteer organizational structure to accommodate a strong corps of volunteers in those areas of service most important to the college. Moreover, the structure provides not only for the enlistment of volunteers, but also for their growth and development into positions of leadership and responsibility within the Alumni Council. In this sense, the Advancement Associates system possesses a self-renewing dimension that holds the potential for a large, vigorous pool of volunteers for the college in the years ahead.

In higher education today, all the talk is of what has become popularly known as "the crunch."

Already, colleges and universities are bracing as best they can for the period extending from the present through the mid-1990s when it is projected that enrollments and enrollment-derived revenues will decline precipitously. Now at the threshold of this period of retrenchment, nearly all colleges and universities are taking extraordinary measures to build up endowments, address capital funding needs, boost annual giving programs and develop other revenue-producing programs.

But such efforts to augment their material resources may all be for naught if similar measures are not taken to marshal an institution's human resources as well. During the coming crisis years in higher education, colleges will find that their continued academic quality and fiscal viability will depend on their ability to bring a combination of resources to bear.

Seen in this perspective, the Advancement Associates program at Juniata is an idea whose time has arrived. With its long tradition of academic excellence, its stable enrollment pattern over the past few years, and its sound financial condition, Juniata College has taken another resolute step in preparing itself for the challenges of the next 10 years with the establishment of the Advancement Associates program. In strengthening the bonds between the college and its friends and alumni, Juniata can look confidently to the future.

Phyllis and Ken Hoover of Lancaster are volunteering their time to serve as presidents of the Juniata Parents Association. Daughter Debbra is currently a senior at Juniata.

Getting Involved

It seems to be a kind of Murphy's Law in alumni relations that while alumni administrators fret about not being able to "reach" their alumni with programs to enlist their involvement and support, alumni counter with the familiar refrain, "They never ask me to do anything important." Whether or not the Advancement Associates program resolves this impasse remains to be seen. In the meantime, it might help to set the record straight by suggesting a few things that alumni and friends of the college can do to help the Juniata cause.

Refer prospective students to Admissions. Nothing that you can do for the college is more important than referring qualified students, and nobody is in a better position to do just that. As an alumnus, you are "out there" where the prospective students are, and you know better than anyone else what a Juniata education can mean. To refer prospective students, contact Gayle Kreider in the Admissions Office (814/643-4310, ext. 420.)

Become active in your regional alumni club. The great majority of Juniata alumni live in areas with a regional club. Not only do the clubs give you the chance to renew old acquaintances and make new ones, but they are a way of staying in touch with Juniata and keeping a piece of the college with you wherever you are. For information about the regional club in your area and its program of activities, contact Dottie Hershberger in the Alumni Office (814/643-4310, ext. 440).

Participate in the Annual Support Fund. And that doesn't just mean making your alumni contribution, although we certainly don't want you to forget about that either! It also means being a class fund agent for your class when one is needed, or signing up for a night on the phones if you live in the central Pennsylvania area and can get to campus for an evening. When we go out from campus for regional phonathons, we'll be looking for alumni in those areas to spend a night on the phones. For information on how to get involved in the Annual Support Fund, contact Russ Rupiper in the Development Office (814/643-4310, ext. 440).

Refer placement opportunities to Career Planning & Placement. One of the most satisfying services that a college can provide is assisting recent graduates and other alumni in their careers. If you are aware of any career opportunities for Juniata graduates where you work or in the area where you live, the Placement Office would be interested. The office also welcomes referrals of potential sites for student internships, employers who would be willing to interview on campus, and any other types of job information and contacts that you can provide. A new program recently started by the Placement Office, The Externship Program, seeks Juniata alumni in various professions who would be willing to sponsor a current student for a 2-3 day on-the-job introduction to the career field. For more information or to make referrals, please contact Bill Martin in the Career Planning and Placement Office (814/643-4310, ext. 350).

Come back to campus whenever you get the chance. The Alumni Association sponsors Homecoming in the fall and Reunion Weekend in the spring so that you can get back together with old friends. Of course, if you just want to come back and look around, anytime that's good for you is alright for us too. While this one may not come under the heading of alumni service, you'll probably enjoy yourself and be glad you came back.

Promote, promote, promote . . . Juniata, that is. Pick your spots, but don't ever pass up the opportunity to tell your friends and associates about Juniata. Get yourself a t-shirt or parka from the bookstore, display a window decal on your car, but above all, let people know about Juniata College and all that it has to offer, especially when they happen to be looking for just the right college.

Students Study at Deborah

By Robert C. Howden

The opportunity to spend a summer working at a prestigious medical facility is something many students dream about. For Juniata seniors Burdett Porter of Montoursville and David Deisher of York, those dreams came true.

The two pre-medicine majors spent eight weeks last summer working at the well-known Deborah Heart and Lung Center in Browns Mills, N.J. Juniata is the only college in the country to place undergraduate students at Deborah, and during the program, Porter and Deisher worked in four different areas of the medical facility.

During the first two weeks of the program, the students worked with doctors as they made their rounds and cared for out-patients. That was followed by two weeks observing surgery and working in the recovery room. Porter and Deisher then spent two weeks in cardiac

Pew Grant Awarded

A $250,000 matching grant from The Pew Memorial Trust of Philadelphia has been awarded to Juniata for the purchase of new academic computer equipment.

The Pew grant is a major step in the college's campaign to upgrade and enhance the academic and administrative computer systems at Juniata. The project will cost $1 million over a five-year period.

In announcing the grant, President Frederick M. Binder said the computer systems now being installed on campus will provide the college and its students with state-of-the-art equipment.

"There has been a rapid growth in student demand for computer science knowledge and the skills needed for computer applications," Dr. Binder said. "Within the next five years, we can expect to have 90% of our students interested in developing these skills."

The $1 million project includes equipment and the renovation of campus facilities to house the new computer systems. The Academic Computer Center will be located in the former science library in the Brumbaugh Science Center, while the administrative system is installed in Oneida Hall.

The Pew grant will be paid to the college in two annual installments of $125,000 each, provided the college matches those funds. "This grant is a major incentive as we launch the $1 million campaign," Dr. Binder said. "Over the years, The Pew Memorial Trust has touched every part of our educational program, and we thank them for their continued support."

The Pew Memorial Trust is the oldest and largest of the several trusts established by J. Howard Pew, Mary Ethel Pew, J.N. Pew, Jr. and Mabel Pew Myrin since 1948. It was created in memory of Joseph N. Pew, founder of the Sun Oil Company and his wife, Mary Anderson Pew, by their four surviving children. The trust provides support to religious, charitable, scientific, literary and educational endeavors.

Juniata seniors David Deisher (left) and Burdett Porter (center) spent the summer working at the famous Deborah Heart and Lung Center in New Jersey. Dr. Ronald D. Walters '74 (right), a specialist in internal medicine at Nason Hospital in Roaring Spring, provided a scholarship to pay for the students' expenses while working at Deborah.

rehabilitation, assisting with EKGs and stress tests, with the final two weeks spent in catheterization.

"We really felt like part of the hospital staff," Porter says. "We weren't just observing. We actually assisted the doctors and were assigned tasks to do on our own. It was a great feeling of satisfaction, and the experience was extremely valuable," Deisher adds.

In addition to their work in the hospital, Porter and Deisher worked on research papers for course work at Juniata. Deisher's project dealt with Percutaneous Transluminal Coronary Angioplasty (PTCA), a catheterization procedure used to inflate blocked arteries. Deisher collected data on patients who had gone through the procedure and based his paper on the results of that data.

Porter's project centered on electro physiological studies (EPS) that are trying to find a drug that will prevent sudden death heart attacks. In his research, Porter examined data on the different drugs used in the study and the results in each case. He then drew conclusions about the drugs based on their success factors.

Both Deisher and Porter hope to attend medical school after graduating in May, but are interested in different fields. Deisher hopes to study neurosurgery while Porter is leaning towards internal medicine.

To help cover their expenses while at Deborah, Porter and Deisher received scholarships provided by Dr. Ronald D. Walters '74, a specialist in internal medicine at Nason Hospital in Roaring Spring. Walters received his M.D. degree from Temple University and studied at Deborah while in medical school.

Juniata's unique summer study program at the Deborah Heart and Lung Center was established in 1976, and is one of several special programs available to Juniata students. Programs also exist at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C., Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., and other prestigious institutions and universities.

"I've talked to several Juniata students who have participated in these special programs, and we all agree they provide excellent educational opportunities," Porter says. Both students agreed that the Deborah program has helped prepare them for medical school.

Yugoslav Educator Visits Juniata

Cheering fans supporting the women's volleyball team have become quite common at Juniata. But for one person watching the NCAA Regional Tournament, it was a unique experience.

"In Yugoslavia, the teaching of sports is emphasized at the university level, not sports competition between schools," says Dr. Janez Stanonik, head of the English department and former dean of the University of Ljubljana. The Yugoslav educator visited Juniata from Nov. 30 to Dec. 15 as the guest of President Frederick M. Binder, and lectured to several English, history and political science classes.

Stanonik was impressed by the spirit of the students at the volleyball tournament and by their classroom performance. "Our classes are all lectures. The students are trained to listen and take notes on what the professor is saying. There are no seminar classes as such and little opportunity for discussion. I think this is unfortunate."

Dr. Janez Stanonik (left), head of the English department and former dean of the University of Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, spent two weeks at Juniata lecturing to classes. He also presented a large map of Yugoslavia to the college, which was accepted by President Frederick M. Binder.

According to Stanonik, the main purpose of universities in Yugoslavia is to train teachers. "Right now, however, there are too many teachers, so students are going into other fields." All education in Yugoslavia is free.

A member of the Ljubljana faculty since 1959, Stanonik teaches English literature and is particularly fond of 19th century American writers, especially Herman Melville. "I became interested in Melville after I heard a Princeton University professor give a lecture on the author," Stanonik explains. American literature became popular in Yugoslavia between the first and second world wars, but books were often difficult to obtain. In 1973, Stanonik published a book on Melville that took him 10 years to write, including a year in the United States researching the author of Moby Dick, Billy Budd and other American classics.

"In recent years, there has been a large influx of students studying the humanities, and this has many educators in Yugoslavia worried," Stanonik notes. "We need people in other fields such as science and math."

Regardless of what field of study a student pursues, however, the courses will be clearly laid out. "Our students do not have the flexibility in course selection that American students have. The requirements are specific and leave little time for courses outside their program of study."

Although Yugoslavia is a Communist country, it is clearly independent from direct Soviet influence. "We maintain contacts with both East and West, and U.S. Yugoslav relations are good. The people of Yugoslavia perceive the United States as a friendly nation," Stanonik says.

Since World War II, English studies have increased in popularity in Yugoslavia. Students are required to take eight years of foreign language study in the primary and secondary schools, and English is the most popular language. "At the University of Ljubljana, the English studies department is much larger than the Russian studies department," Stanonik points out.

Although the English language is studied extensively, most Yugoslav universities offer few, if any, courses in American history, geography or government. "This is unfortunate, but we do not have individuals trained in these areas, and it is difficult to get American professors to come to Yugoslavia because of the language problem," Stanonik says. However, this is precisely how Stanonik met Juniata's president. In 1967, Dr. Binder became the first Fulbright lecturer in American history assigned to Yugoslavia.

There is little doubt the visit will leave a lasting impression on Stanonik. "This visit has been a wonderful experience for me, and I will return to Yugoslavia with fond memories of Juniata College, its students, faculty and staff."

U. for Peace Established

By Robert C. Howden

As war and turmoil in the Middle East, Central America and the Caribbean dominate news headlines, efforts to foster world peace continue at the United Nations.

In 1985, the New York-based world organization will begin accepting students for its University for Peace, now under construction in Costa Rica. In recent months, the United Nations Council for the University for Peace, headed by former Costa Rica President Don Rodrigo Carazo Odio, has held a series of hearings and meetings designed to solidify curriculum plans for the international institution.

As one of only 88 colleges and universities in the United States offering a peace studies program, Juniata has been the focus of much attention from Carazo and his United Nations Council.

At a September meeting in New York, 14 church leaders and peace studies educators from across the country, including the Rev. Dr. M. Andrew Murray, campus minister and assistant professor of religion, met with Carazo to discuss the new university.

"The university should take an aggressive role in establishing common parameters for peace studies programs," says Murray, who also serves as director of Juniata's Peace and Conflict Studies Program. "Efforts should be made to standardize peace studies programs from college to college in order to prepare students for graduate level study at institutions such as the University for Peace," Murray adds.

Murray also views the University for Peace as an institution to train peace educators and assume a leadership role in maintaining the interdisciplinary focus of peace studies. "A peace studies curriculum must go beyond the political science focus and include courses in sociology, history, foreign languages and religion."

Juniata's involvement in the University for Peace project dates back to July, 1981 when Murray and President Frederick M. Binder met with Carazo while he was president of Costa Rica. That meeting first brought Carazo's attention to the peace studies program at Juniata, and occurred while the two were in Costa Rica attending the triennial meeting of the International Association of University Presidents.

Last February, four Juniata students were invited to testify before the United Nations Council for the University for Peace, outlining the need for graduate level programs in peace studies and what they, as students, would look for in such a program.

As a result of these discussions, Carazo has expressed an interest in visiting the Juniata campus for a first-hand examination of the college's program. Such a visit could come next fall.

While the United Nations proceeds with its University for Peace, there is a growing movement in the United States Congress to establish a National Academy for Peace. Once again, Juniata is the focus of some attention.

An article in the fall issue of Pennsylvania magazine traces the history of the Peace Academy movement and states, "The Juniata College Peace and Conflict Studies Program is a rough model in miniature of what the National Peace Academy would entail."

The call for some sort of a national peace institution dates back to 1783 when George Washington predicted that Congress would recommend the formation of a proper peace establishment. Over the years, similar calls have come from Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

In 1978, Congress established a Presidential Commission to study the merits of a National Peace Academy, and after public hearings in 1980 and 1981, the Commission made several recommendations including, "A Peace Academy could save American taxpayers billions of dollars each year while significantly reducing the levels of violence inside the country as well as outside. A Peace Academy, therefore, should be established." Such a bill is now before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The peace studies program at Juniata was established in 1974 through the efforts of Dr. John C. and Elizabeth E. Baker of Essex Fells, N.J. A 1917 Juniata graduate and current member of the college's Board of Trustees, Dr. Baker was president of Ohio University from 1945-61, and served as President Eisenhower's senior representative to the United Nations Economic and Social Council (UNESCO) from 1953-55. The Bakers' philosophy that young adults should be trained in the art of conflict resolution, as cadets at the armed service academies are trained in conflict itself, is the backbone of Juniata's Peace and Conflict Studies Program.

Elizabeth Weeks Swigart '22 addresses the annual Founders Club luncheon as Juniata President Frederick M. Binder looks on. Also honored at the luncheon were John W. Swigart '30 and William E. Swigart, Jr. '37.

Swigarts Honored

In recognition of their many years of dedicated service to Juniata, Elizabeth Weeks Swigart '22, John W. Swigart '30 and William E. Swigart, Jr. '37, all of Huntingdon, were honored during the annual Founders Club luncheon Saturday, Nov. 5.

Noting that the Swigart family has been an integral part of Juniata College since its founding, President Frederick M. Binder praised the three for carrying on the family tradition of service.

"Over the years these three individuals have made important contributions to Juniata College. Their efforts led to the establishment of Swigart Hall as the college's music center, and later to its maintenance and renovation. The creation of the Eva Workman Swigart Memorial Scholarship Fund for music students and the W. Emmert Swigart Treasure Room in Beeghly Library have enhanced Juniata's academic program," Dr. Binder said.

William J. Swigart, grandfather of John and William, was one of Juniata's first trustees, serving from 1878 to 1939. He also served as college treasurer and a member of the faculty. William Emmert Swigart, John and William's father and Elizabeth's husband, graduated from Juniata in 1906 and also served on the Board of Trustees.

Mrs. Swigart has served the college as a member of the home economics department faculty and as Dean of Women. In addition to her support of the Friends of the Juniata College Library, the hundreds of volumes of rare books she has donated to Beeghly Library are housed in the W. Emmert Swigart Treasure Room, a memorial to her late husband.

John W. Swigart has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1950, and currently serves as its secretary and treasurer. His numerous contributions to Juniata were recognized in 1976 when he was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree. As the former president and current chairman of the board of Swigart Associates, John Swigart is a prominent Huntingdon business and civic leader.

Also a well-known business and civic leader, William E. Swigart, Jr. is president of Swigart Associates. Over the years, he has served Juniata as chairman of the President's Development Council, president of the National Alumni Association, president of the Huntingdon Area Alumni Club, chairman of the Annual Support Fund, class fund agent and chairman of numerous campaigns. In 1973, he was presented with the National Alumni Association Service Award.

Many members of the Swigart family, all long-time Juniata supporters, attended the Founders Club luncheon.

Students Receive Awards

Three Juniata students have been awarded Scholars in Education Awards from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA).

Danielle M. Rupp, a freshman from Red Lion, Susan R. Fuss, a junior from Hanover, and Roxann Binner, a senior from Dillsburg, each received awards amounting to half of their tuition at Juniata. The Scholars in Education Award recipients were announced Oct. 12 at a press conference in Harrisburg. The awards were made to 94 Pennsylvania college students who aspire to become science or mathematics teachers in Pennsylvania secondary schools.

According to Rep. James J.A. Gallagher, PHEAA chairman, "The PHEAA Board of Directors decided to attack the critical shortage of highly qualified science and mathematics teachers with the Scholars in Education Awards program. The Board funded the program with income from $19 million that PHEAA has earned servicing student loans nationwide, and set out to get the 'cream of the crop' among potential teachers by offering them a strong incentive to prepare for and pursue teaching careers."

Miss Rupp, the highest scholastically ranked freshman nominee for the award, was one of three students asked to participate in the Oct. 12 press conference, and received her award from Rep. David R. Wright of Clarion. Also present for the press conference was President Frederick M. Binder and Dr. Norman E. Siems, associate professor of physics.

A chemistry major, Miss Rupp is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Rupp of R.D. 2, Red Lion, and a 1983 graduate of Red Lion Senior High School.

The three Juniata students presented with Scholars in Higher Education Awards are: Roxann Binner '84 of Dillsburg (seated), Danielle M. Rupp '87 of Red Lion (center) and Susan R. Fuss '85 of Hanover (right).

Miss Fuss, a computer science and math major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Fuss of R.D. 1, Hanover, and a 1981 graduate of South Western High School.

A math and secondary education major, Miss Binner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Binner of R.D. 5, Dillsburg, and a 1980 graduate of Northern Senior High School.

PHEAA announced the Scholars in Education Awards program in June and requested nominations from 74 Pennsylvania colleges and universities with appropriate teacher training curriculums. Scholastic criteria for nomination were a combined SAT score of at least 1000 with a minimum of 550 in mathematics. Nominees also had to have been in the top 20 percent of their high school class, and had to have achieved a B (3.0) average in their high school and college courses in science and mathematics.

In the past at Juniata College, planned giving has meant several things: Pooled Income Funds, Charitable Gift Annuities, Bequests by Will. In the future, planned giving at Juniata will include these three vehicles and several more in coordinating the needs, expectations, and desires of alumni and friends with the needs, current and future, of the institution. In working with friends and alumni as well as with their financial and legal advisors, the program will seek to build the endowment of Juniata College while meeting the personal needs of our friends.

The benefits to the friends and alumni of Juniata who choose to participate in the Planned Giving program are substantial, including considerable tax savings. Donors will also be able to direct their support to projects most meaningful to them and to know the impact of their gifts on the college in the years ahead.

The Planned Giving office at Juniata has brochures and reference materials on the following subjects available at your request:

1. Estate Planning
2. Making Your Will
3. You Can Be a Philanthropist
4. Charitable Remainder Unitrusts
5. Charitable Remainder Annuity Trusts
6. Pooled Income Funds Gifts
7. Charitable Gift Annuities
8. Gifts of Life Insurance

In future issues of the Bulletin, these gift methods will be discussed in detail to provide our friends and alumni with a greater insight into these vehicles. The planned giving program at Juniata is here not only to benefit the college, but to enable you to lend vital support to the college in ways of maximum advantage to you.

Please write or call if you have any questions or would like to discuss planned giving possibilities. Contact Ellen S. Wallace, Planned Giving Officer (814/643-4310, ext. 440).

Planned Giving and You

by Ellen S. Wallace, Esq. '77

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles on planned giving at Juniata College. In the midst of the Century II Campaign, the planned giving program is a significant part of the college's financial advancement and stability in the years ahead. The following article and those in other issues of the Bulletin are meant to familiarize alumni and friends of Juniata College with the opportunities for planned giving and the advantages to them and the college.

In this issue of the Bulletin, there is an article on the death of John N. Stauffer '36, the seventh President of Juniata College who initiated a series of articles in the Bulletin on planned giving in 1976. It seems most fitting, therefore, that the first article in this series be dedicated to him. In his first article, which was called "Notes on Estate Planning at Juniata," Dr. Stauffer used an analogy of the three-legged stool to illustrate the idea of Juniata's stability and quality deriving from the Annual Support Fund, capital fund campaigns, and planned giving. That analogy is a sound one and deserves consideration today.

The first leg, Annual Support Fund, was established in 1969 to help with special needs in the educational budget and to provide financial assistance for deserving, and needy students. Most gifts to the fund are from the annual contributions of alumni and friends of Juniata. The fund has attracted strong support over the years and continues to be the bellweather of support to Juniata. Currently, about 42% of our alumni participate in the fund.

The second leg, capital fund campaigns, have been instituted over the years for capital needs, such as new buildings or major equipment expenditures. For example, the college recently dedicated the Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center which was made possible by the most ambitious capital campaign in Juniata's history. The college is now engaged in a special capital campaign to raise $1,000,000 to support the new computer complex. Part of this campaign includes meeting a $250,000 matching grant over the next two years in support of the new computer and facilities at Juniata. In short, capital fund campaigns are instituted to meet the major opportunities and needs of the college to enhance its educational facilities and mission.

The third leg at Juniata, planned giving, was nurtured and developed by the late Dr. John N. Stauffer in the mid-to late '70s. As we prepare to enter the 21st century, Juniata faces many challenges, including being able to provide quality education at an affordable price to future generations of students. This type of challenge can be met through planned giving.

AROUND CAMPUS

Three Sisters at Juniata

By Ronald F. Renzini '84

It is not unusual for siblings to attend the same college. For the three Palmer sisters, it seems the natural thing to do.

This year, Cynthia, Dorothea and Deborah Palmer of Bel Air, Md., transferred to Juniata as members of the junior class. Their selection of Juniata as the place to further their education is not the only common link for the three sisters.

Cindy, 22, and her twin sisters, Dodie and Debbie, 21, all came to Juniata from Garrett County College, Md., where they graduated with associate degrees in math sciences.

All three sisters are interested in outdoor activities and have all declared environmental science as their program of emphasis at Juniata. As a result, they share many of the same classes.

Raised near the East Coast for part of their childhood, the Palmer sisters have always shown an interest in natural and marine sciences. Debbie and Dodie both worked part time at an environmental center during their high school years.

They followed this interest in science through high school and into their two-year associate degrees at Garrett. "We decided that we wanted to further our education in the sciences," says Dodie, "So we all started looking at different colleges to get our bachelor degrees."

"We didn't originally decide to attend the same college for our bachelors, but Juniata was recommended to us by several different sources," says Cindy.

One of the principal people who influenced the women was their biology professor at Garrett County College who, according to Debbie, had heard of Juniata's "fine science program and overall academic excellence."

So after looking at different colleges in Maryland and Pennsylvania, the women applied to Juniata. "Cindy was accepted first and then we applied and were accepted a few months later," says Dodie.

It should come as no surprise that all three women are living in Leshner Hall. Dodie and Debbie are even rooming together. And according to Cindy, "It (living in a residence hall) is different from having your own room at home, but you feel a lot closer to the college, like you're an important part of it. Living in a residence hall has been a real positive experience."

Debbie adds that she "likes the fact that Ellis (College Center) is right in the middle of campus. You can walk right across the street for your meals and club meetings."

All three women have found extra-curricular activities on campus to match their hobbies and interests. All three women have joined Laughing Bush, the college's outing service, and are looking forward to the whitewater rafting trips planned by the organization. Both Dodie and Debbie are certified river raft guides for the Cheat River in West Virginia, not far from their home.

The women also participate in intramural sports, an activity in which more than 80% of Juniata's students take part. They are trying their skill at intramural volleyball this term.

Asked to sum up her feelings about her experiences at Juniata to date, Cindy says, "I'm really enjoying myself here." Dodie and Debbie both smile while agreeing with Cindy. That shouldn't come as a shock though, for the Palmer sisters seem to enjoy everything they do together, and Juniata gives them a chance to do it in a close, personal setting which serves as a catalyst for their mutual interests.

Editor's Note: Ronald F. Renzini, a marketing and communications major from Scranton, is editor-in-chief of The Juniatian, the weekly student newspaper, and a student assistant in the public relations office.

Dr. Binder Appointed

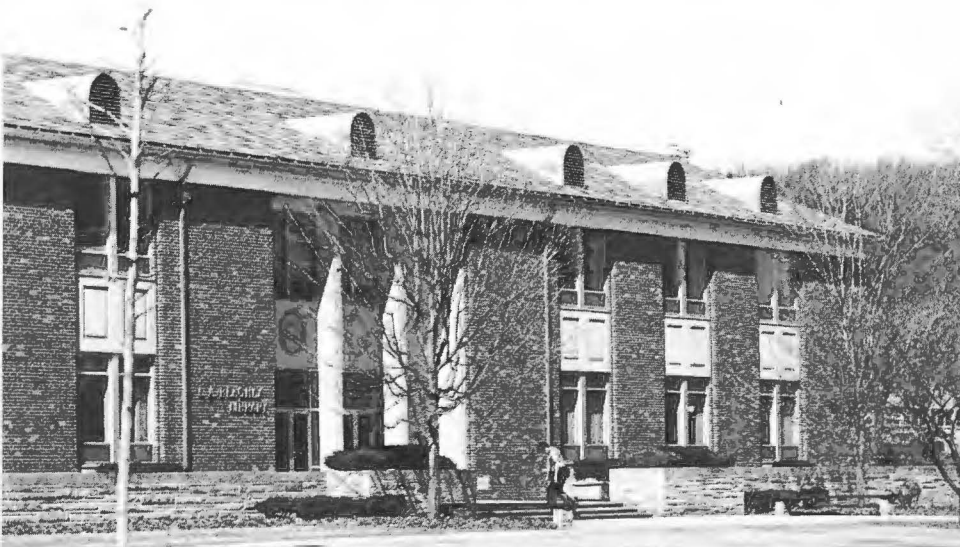

Gov. Richard Thornburgh has appointed Juniata President Frederick M. Binder to the Pennsylvania State Board of Education.

The State Board is comprised of 17 citizens appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate for staggered six-year terms. In addition to the main Board, Dr. Binder is one of two professional educators serving on the Board's eight-member Council on Higher Education.

Meeting bimonthly, the Board reviews elementary and secondary education policies and regulations relating to curriculum, vocational education, pupil services, media services, attendance, special education, intermediate units, buildings, transportation and other topics.

The Board also reviews higher education policies and regulations on equal educational opportunity, private junior colleges, community colleges, associate degrees, private colleges and seminaries, state-owned universities, private colleges and universities, graduate programs, professional schools and certification and other postsecondary concerns. Board members are not paid for their services.

Foundation Sets Endowment For Library Maintenance

The library plays a key role in the academic environment of any college or university, and this is certainly true of the L.A. Beeghly Library at Juniata.

In addition to its original support during construction of the facility, the Leon A. Beeghly Foundation of Youngstown, Ohio and members of the Beeghly family have established an endowment at Juniata to be used to pay for maintenance of the building. Such an endowment supports the Foundation's philosophy of maintaining those structures it has been instrumental in establishing.

Established in 1940, the Foundation focuses on Protestant church support and religious associations, higher education, hospitals and health agencies, community funds and aid to the handicapped.

L.A. Beeghly Library was built in 1963 and contains more than 200,000 bound volumes, microforms, government documents and audio-visual resource materials, as well as 800 current periodical subscriptions and several rare book and document collections.

Pentz Scholarship Set

A scholarship for pre-medical students has been established at Juniata by Mrs. Dorothy Saylor Pentz of North Coventry as a memorial to her late husband, Dr. Clarence R. Pentz '26.

The Clarence R. Pentz Pre-Medical Scholarship will be presented each year to the senior student who, in the judgment of the pre-medical committee and the Dean of Academic Affairs, has given evidence of a humanitarian attitude, scholarship and character which will contribute to success in the practice of medicine.

In announcing the scholarship, President Frederick M. Binder praised Dr. Pentz as an individual dedicated to the practice of medicine and as a loyal Juniatian. Dr. Pentz, who died Aug. 2 at age 78, was a member of the President's Development Council for 30 years. He also served Juniata as president of the National Alumni Association and a member of the Alumni

A Fellow of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Dr. Pentz received his M.D. degree from Thomas Jefferson Medical College and his M.S. degree in medicine from the University of Pennsylvania. He was recently honored by Thomas Jefferson Medical College for 50 years of practicing medicine.

Dr. Pentz was active in numerous civic and professional organizations, and was a member of the Coventry Church of the Brethren.

1957-63 he was dean of the college, and from 1963-68 served as Wittenberg's ninth president.

Listed in "Who's Who in America" and "American Men and Women of Science," Dr. Stauffer belonged to numerous professional and civic organizations. He served on the executive committee of the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities and as the group's vice chairman. He has been a member of the Government Relations Committee, Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities, and was chairman of several evaluating teams for the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dr. Stauffer's many civic activities have included seats on the boards of several local organizations.

Over the years, Dr. Stauffer served Juniata as president of its National Alumni Association and as a member of the Board of Trustees. After resigning as Juniata's president in 1975, he assisted the college's development program, maintaining special responsibility in estate planning. He retired from that post in 1979.

In addition to his wife, Dr. Stauffer is survived by three sons, Thomas M., John L., and Donald D.; a daughter, Mrs. Nancy Montgomery; and several grandchildren.

The faculty and staff at Juniata held a memorial service for Dr. Stauffer on Sept. 29. The Stauffer family requests that contributions to the Stauffer Scholarship be sent to the Office of College Advancement at Juniata.

John Stauffer Dies; Scholarship Created through the first three years of his or her academic program.

"This scholarship is a fitting tribute to a man who, for many years, dedicated his time and energy to Juniata, its students, faculty and alumni," said Charles C. Ellis '40, chairman of the college's Board of Trustees.

A native of Palmyra, Dr. Stauffer and his wife, the former Marianne Louise Lee of Altoona, received their degrees from Juniata in 1936. Dr. Stauffer received his M.A. degree in Psychology from the University of Pennsylvania in 1942, and after further study in psychology at Harvard University and Ohio State University, received his D.Ed. in counseling and higher education from the Pennsylvania State University in 1956. He received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Juniata in 1964 and an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Wittenberg University in 1968.

Dr. Stauffer joined the Wittenberg University administration in 1947, serving as dean of students for 10 years. From Dr. John N. Stauffer who served as Juniata's seventh president from 1968-75, died Sept. 28 in Naples, Fla. He was 68.

As a memorial, alumni, friends and family have established the John N. Stauffer Humanities Scholarship to be awarded on a merit basis, to a humanities student who has demonstrated outstanding ability and personal character

FACULTY AND STAFF

JAMES J. LAKSO, professor of economics and business administration, was one of 40 college professors nationwide invited to attend the prestigious "Program for Teachers of Economics" at the Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago. The program was supported by a grant from the General Electric Foundation, and gave the participants an opportunity to examine developments in a number of economic areas.

Beta Beta Beta, the national biological society, has announced that ROBERT L. FISHER, professor of biology, has been appointed director of the organization's District 2, Northeastern Region. Fisher also will be a member of the national officer group.

"A Liberal Arts Chemist on Sabbatical in Industry" was the title of the paper presented by PAUL D. SCHETTTLER, JR. professor of chemistry, at a September symposium on "Industrial Chemistry and College Chemistry Teaching" sponsored by the American Chemical Society. Schettler's paper dealt with his experiences working in the research department of Columbia Gas Corp. while on sabbatical in 1981-82.

GAYLE (WAMPLER '68) KREIDER, director of admissions, has been named president-elect of the Pennsylvania Association of College Admissions Counselors. As president-elect, Ms. Kreider will serve as coordinator of the organization's state conference to be held in June. At that time, she will be installed as the group's president for 1984-85. Ms. Krieder has been a member of the organization's Executive Board for several years, and has been in charge of regional fairs in Pennsylvania.

Two members of the political science faculty, CRAIG BAXTER, professor of politics and history and THOMAS J. BALDINO, assistant professor of political science, presented papers as members of two panel discussions at the November meeting of the Northeast Political Science Association. Baxter was a member of the panel of "Ethnic Separatism and World Politics" and discussed "Bangladesh." Baldino served on the "Congress" panel and discussed "Committee Assignments, Career Advancement and Electoral Marginality in the U.S. House of Representatives." Baxter recently was named chairman of the

Scholarship Honors Dr. Rockwell

Dr. Donald M. Rockwell, professor of chemistry, emeritus, died Oct. 8 at J.C. Blair Hospital, Huntingdon, at the age of 76.

A member of the Juniata faculty from 1932 until his retirement in 1972, Dr. Rockwell was chairman of the chemistry department from 1950-65, and chairman of Division III (science and mathematics departments) from 1965-66. In 1966, Dr. Rockwell became Acting Dean of Academic Affairs and served as Dean from 1967-70. He held the Jacob H. and Rachel Brumbaugh professorial chair from 1958 until his retirement. In 1970 he was named the Beachley Distinguished Professor.

During the construction of the Brumbaugh Science Center, Dr. Rockwell served as liaison between the architects and the college. The Donald M. Rockwell Chemistry Wing is dedicated in his honor.

A native of Proctor, Vt., Dr. Rockwell received his bachelors degree from the University of Vermont in 1927 and his Ph.D. from Yale University in 1931. He was a Calco Post-Doctoral Fellow at Yale in 1931-32.

A member of numerous professional organizations and societies, Dr. Rockwell served as director of the National Science Foundation's Summer Institutes for high school chemistry teachers from 1963-68. From 1944-60, he was a chemical consultant to the Prismo Safety Corp.

Dr. Rockwell was an active member of the Abbey Reformed Church, serving as a choir member and director, deacon, elder, past president of the church consistory and a Sunday School teacher. From 1964-66, Dr. Rockwell was moderator for the Penn West Conference of the United Church of Christ, and was chairman of the nominating committee of the General Synod of the United Church of Christ.

Also active in the Boy Scouts of America, Dr. Rockwell served locally as a Cub Master, Assistant Scoutmaster, Explorer advisor and a member of several committees. In addition, he was active in the Huntingdon Rotary Club, having served as president of that organization.

Dr. Rockwell is survived by his wife, the former Katherine Haring; two sons, Dr. Kenneth H. Rockwell, professor of biology at Juniata and James A. Rockwell; two daughters, Marion Rockwell and Susan Coen; a sister, Helen Hayes; and eight grandchildren.

Colleagues of Dr. Rockwell have established the Donald M. Rockwell Scholarship Fund at Juniata, funds from which will be awarded on a merit basis to incoming freshman students in the natural sciences. Contributions to the scholarship fund may be sent to the Office of College Advancement.

Founding Committee of the American Institute of Bangladesh Studies, and is currently having discussions with the government of Bangladesh aimed at establishing academic exchange programs for senior scholars and graduate students in the United States and Bangladesh. The five-member Founding Committee recently met at a conference on South Asia sponsored by the University of Wisconsin, where Baxter delivered papers on the foreign policies of Pakistan and Bangladesh.

EI-ICHIRO OCHIAI, associate professor of chemistry, delivered the fourth annual Harold B. Brumbaugh Trustee Lecture on Oct. 21. Ochiai's topic was "The Origin of Life, A Chemist's View." The lecture series is designed to enable faculty members to share their research with members of the Board of Trustees and the college community.

J. PETER TREXLER and ROBERT H. WASHBURN, both professors of geology, participated in the Field Conference of Pennsylvania Geological Society. The three-day conference attracted nearly 260 geologists from across the country, including LYNN S. FICHTER '65, associate professor of geology at James Madison University.

Trexler, Washburn and LAURENCE J. MUTTI, associate professor of geology, all attended the national meeting of the Geological Society of America, where they participated in a variety of technical sessions and seminars.

Several alumni also attended the meeting and gathered together for the first GSA annual alumni luncheon. Those attending were KENNETH W. KUEHN '75, DEBORAH (WILBUR '76) KUEHN, GLENN DUFFIELD '81, DAVID FULTON '82, ROBERT GOLDSTEIN '79, DAVID LEHMANN '83, DAVID SHENBERGER '82, CRAIG SMITH '82, GERALD WOLF '82 and DAWNA YANNACCI '81.

The Huntingdon Trio of Philadelphia, with DIANE W. GOLD, instructional assistant in music, as flutist, met with critical acclaim and success on the fall tour of Europe. The group has produced its first record album entitled "The Huntingdon Trio," consisting of contemporary chamber music for flute, oboe, cello and piano.

PAUL M. HEBERLING, associate professor of anthropology, presented a talk on the "Interpretation of the Cyril Webb Artifact Collection" at the September meeting of the Huntingdon County Historical Society. In October, he addressed the meeting of the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology on the topic "Historic Archaeological Strategies in the Study of Domestic Sites."

DUANE F. STROMAN, professor of sociology, spoke to members of the Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association at its annual meeting in Harrisburg in September. Stroman talked about the benefits, methods and costs of doing consumer surveys. In October, Stroman attended the Pennsylvania Elderhostel meeting of campus directors. At the meeting, 1983 program successes and problems were reviewed, and plans were made for 1984 summer programs. Stroman directs the Elderhostel program at Juniata.

It was an active fall for WILLIAM B. MARTIN '59, director of career planning and placement. He was elected treasurer of the Mid-Atlantic Placement Association for a two-year term. MAPA is an association of career planning and placement directors and corporate recruiters in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia. In addition, Martin presented a program on the "Principles for Professional Conduct" at the fall MAPA conference. He also made a presentation at the fall meeting of the Association for School, College and University Staffing (ASCUS), an association of college placement directors and educational recruiters.

STUDENTS

Forty-six members of this year's freshman class have been designated "prestige scholars" for 1983-84, and were awarded Richard M. Simpson, Brumbaugh-Ellis Presidential or Alumni Annual Support Fund scholarships.

This year's Simpson Scholarship went to SUSAN HEPBURN of Lancaster.

The 12 students awarded Brumbaugh-Ellis Presidential Scholarships are: LISA AURAND of Burnham, LORI BASON of Somerset, LOIS BUCHANAN of Malvern, ANN CAMERON of Hershey, JANICE CASSIDY of Chaddsford, MICHAEL DI TARANTO of Philadelphia, KENNETH GFROERER of Wellsboro, SYLVIA GOLAS of Ebensburg, MARLIN KREGER of Liberty, MARTHA KUDER of Churchville, ERIK OLSON of Mercer and KATHLEEN REEVES of Ebensburg.

Thirty-three students were Alumni Annual Support Fund Scholarship recipients. They are: ROBERT ALBRIGHT of Manheim, MARK BECK of New Berlin, BEVERLY BESHORE of Lancaster, KENNETH BURTON of Huntingdon, JEFFREY BUTTIMER of Newtown, LAURA CLARK of Manheim, STAFANI CLARK of Clearfield, SCOTT CODY of Philadelphia, SALLY DE LUCA of Mount Upton, N.Y., MICHAEL GIBLIN of Harrisburg, ROBERT GREENLEE of Johnstown, JEAN HAHN of Bethlehem, MARK HARRIS of Carlisle, ANDREA HELWIG of Allentown, MARJORIE HENRY of Hall Stead and JOANNE JACKSON of West Berlin, N.J.

Also MARTIN KIMMEL of Tyrone, DAVID KUNKLE of Marysville, CYNTHIA LANG of Hollidaysburg, SARAH LETAW of Upper Marlboro, Md., JEAN

MC CUTCHEON of Harrisburg, MICHAEL MIHLFRIED of Pittsburgh, CELESTE NEZNESKI of Portage, GREGORY PAWLIKOWSKI of Barnesboro, MARK RICH of Latrobe, MARJORIE RISSER of Akron, TRACY ROSENBERGER of Johnstown, DANIELLE RUPP of Red Lion, STEPHANIE SEIDLE of Gaithersburg, Md., KARYN SIEHL of Johnstown, KIRK SMITH of Mechanicsburg, LAURALEE SNYDER of Hollidaysburg and LORRAINE TILTON of Hopewell, N.J.

At Juniata's annual Opening Convocation in September, five seniors were awarded top scholarships in recognition of academic excellence and strong character. W. BRUCE KISSEL of Lancaster received the Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. Award in political science, established for the 1983-84 academic year by Rep. Samuel Hayes, Jr. of Tyrone.

The William A. Schlichter Award for academic achievement and Christian character was presented to JOSEPH W. WHITACRE of York Springs. LAURA A. BABIASH of Malvern received the Martin H. Heine Memorial Scholarship, presented to a senior who has decided to pursue a career in business.

The C. Jewett Henry Memorial Scholarship, awarded to a senior who has decided to pursue a career in law, went to JOY L. HADLY of Camden, N.J. MARK L. TAYLOR of Tyrone received the Elizabeth Bailey Thornbury Pre-Law Student Scholarship.

VISITORS

After several successful appearances on television and Broadway, comedian/juggler MICHAEL DAVIS brought his zany act to Juniata in December. Known for juggling bowling balls and other unusual items, Davis was a hit with the Juniata audience.

The 1983-84 Baker Lecture Series opened in September with an address on "Islamic Fundamentalism and the Revolution in Iran," presented by DR. R. K. RAMAZANI, Edward Stettinius Professor of Government and International Relations at the University of Virginia.

The Series continued with DR. ROBERT C. JOHANSEN, senior fellow and chairman of research and policy studies at the World Policy Institute in New York. Johansen's topic was "How to Find Security in the Nuclear Age:

Preparing for the 1990s."

"America and Western Europe in Transition" was the title of the Baker Lecture delivered in November by DR. DONALD J. PUCHALA, professor of government and international studies at the University of South Carolina.

DR. DAVID V.J. BELL, professor of political science and dean of graduate studies at York University in Toronto, came to campus in December and discussed "On Living Next to an Elephant: Reflections on Canadian-U.S. Relations." The Series is co-sponsored by the Peace and Conflict Studies Committee and the political science department.

Juniata's recently restored Moller organ was played to perfection during an October lecture and recital by GEORGE STAUFFER, organist and director of chapel music at St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University. Stauffer's two-part program was entitled "Bach the Borrower, Bach the Virtuoso."

THE JOFFREY BALLET CENTER CONCERT GROUP performed before an enthusiastic Oller Hall audience in September to open the 1983-84 Artists Series. That program was followed with a concert by clarinetist JOHN MOHLER. The Series continued in January with MUMMENSCHANZ, the Swiss mime company.

The three remaining performances in the Series are scheduled for March 18, MICHALA PETRI TRIO; April 10, ROBERT SWAN, pianist; and May 18, Gilbert and Sullivan's PATIENCE, presented by the Juniata Department of Music.

Graduates Address Class

Part of the education process at Juniata is learning from others. As students plan their careers and prepare to enter the job market, advice from those who have already been through the process can be very helpful.

Dr. Ronald L. Cherry '53, professor of economics and business administration and department chairman, has put this philosophy into practice in his class on The Management Process, formerly known as Organization for Administration.

Five recent Juniata graduates visited Cherry's class during a two-day period last fall. They discussed their jobs, how they obtained those positions and what courses at Juniata were most valuable.

John E. Marshall '78, a major marketing representative for Xerox, urged students to make use of the services provided by the Career Planning and Placement Office, particularly when writing resumes and preparing for interviews.

Understanding the various organizational styles of corporations has been particularly helpful for Marshall, who deals with many different corporate companies. "In sales, you have to understand the customer and know what he needs," Marshall told the students.

Vicky (Suppes '78) Marshall, who sells two-way radios for Motorola Communications, told the students that the case studies she had to do while at Juniata have given her valuable experience. She noted that her company gives employees case studies to work on as part of the job promotion process. She also advised students that before going on a job interview, research the company first.

In his role as marketing director for Penn Central National Bank in Huntingdon, John A. Cook '81 works in all phases of banking, including promotion, services and marketing. He cited courses in marketing management, research and communications as most helpful in his line of work.

Duncan P. McIntyre '79 works for NCR and got his job through the Placement Profiles book put together by the Career Planning and Placement Office. He added that the business courses he took at Juniata were all helpful, and would follow that same pattern if he had to do it over again. "The only thing I would add that I did not take is Introduction to Computers," McIntyre said.

The importance of computer knowledge was emphasized as well by Amy (Bowser '81) McEwen who now works for Blue Cross. She added that she should have taken a speech communications course.

"When you are a student, you must think ahead and plan for the future. You may not like a particular course, but if you think it will be helpful for your professional growth, take it," she told the class.

All five alumni emphasized the importance of the job interview. "You have got to sell yourself and fit the needs of the company," Vicky Marshall said. "Let them know how you can help their firm."

Royer Document Presented

After playing key roles in the archaeological and use study of the historic Royer Mansion near Williamsburg, two Juniata alumni have donated a copy of the recently completed document to the college's L.A. Beeghly Library.

Margaret (Grove '63) Goodman of Altoona and George J. Drobnock '71 of Mt. Union joined forces with archaeologist Margaret Fields and Mrs. Goodman's husband, architect A. Raymond Goodman, to undertake the eight-month study. Mrs. Goodman is a member of the board of the Blair County Historical Society, the group that commissioned the study, and assistant director of Fort Roberdeau Park. Drobnock, a preservation consultant, has worked for several area historical societies as well as state agencies.

According to Drobnock, the study, which was funded by the Blair County Historical Society, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and the National Trust for Historic Preservation, includes a complete history of the house and its occupants, an archaeological report, and recommends future uses for the mansion.

The structure currently belongs to the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, but the report recommends that ownership be transferred to the Blair County Historical Society. Legislation to accomplish this is now being considered in Harrisburg. Once ownership is transferred, the report proposes that the mansion be renovated and used for housing, office space and a museum for the Blair County Historical Society.

The historic mansion, home of Samuel Royer who was a prominent businessman and ironmaster at nearby Springfield Furnace, has been the target of restoration efforts recently. Drobnock noted that Juniata's archives were used for the research project, as were the talents of Dr. J. Peter Trexler, professor of geology, Paul M. Heberling, associate professor of anthropology, and several student volunteers.

In accepting the 136-page report on behalf of the college, John P. Mulvaney, technical services librarian, noted that it is a valuable addition to the college archives and an important resource volume for individuals researching local history.

Career Programs Set

The Career Planning and Placement Office is planning two important events this year, and Juniata alumni and friends can play an important role in the success of each program.

According to William B. Martin '59, director of career planning and placement, Operation Extern and the Career Fair are major factors in helping Juniata students prepare for the future.

Operation Extern gives students an opportunity to "shadow" a person around his or her place of business for a period of usually two days. Students are matched with Extern volunteers working in career areas that reflect the student's interest. The program is conducted during Juniata's winter vacation (week of Feb. 27), and gives the student a feel for the working environment. Last year, 20 students participated in the program.

The Career Fair, which is held every other year, has been scheduled for Wednesday, April 11. This popular program provides students with an opportunity to talk with alumni who reflect their career interests. The fair is held in Baker Refectory during the lunch period, so students may spend more time with participants and table hop to explore other career possibilities.

Martin notes that 49 alumni and friends, and 700 students participated in the 1982 Career Fair.

Anyone interested in participating in either Operation Extern or Career Fair should contact Martin at the Career Planning and Placement Office (814) 643-4310, extension 350. Volunteers play a vital role in the success of these programs.

EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM

The Career Planning and Placement Office, in coordination with the Alumni Office, is developing an Externship Program similar to a "mini apprenticeship," which involves having a student share the experience of your profession for a minimum period of two days at their expense. The externships would occur during the week of February 27, 1984, on days mutually agreeable to the professional and student. Areas of particular interest include: Allied Health Care/Medicine; Science; Business; High Technology; Law/Government; Communication/Social Sciences; and areas of interest that alumni feel would provide good exposure to junior and senior students. It is hoped that through such minimal exposure, the students will gain insight to their field of interest as well as provide an opportunity for students to meet Juniata alumni. Your help in these two areas will be greatly appreciated. Interested alumni and friends of Juniata College may contact: Marjorie J. Love in the Alumni Office. Juniata College, Huntingdon, PA 16652. (814) 643-4310 Ext. 442.

Homecoming 1983

Margaret A. Guerrini '83, of Middleburg, was crowned the 1983 Homecoming Queen during halftime ceremonies at the Homecoming football game Saturday, Nov. 5. Miss Guerrini received her crown from President Frederick M. Binder.

The Queen's court, one representative from each class, also was announced during halftime. The 1983 court members are freshman Joanne M. Jackson of West Berlin, N.J., sophomore Kelly M. Mehigan of Marlton, N.J., junior Margaret E. Evans from Murrys ville and senior Marie L. Glendenning of Malvern.

A pre-medicine, chemistry and biology major, Miss Guerrini is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Americ Guerrini of RD 1, Middleburg, and a 1980 graduate of Middleburg High School.

Miss Jackson, a 1983 graduate of Paul VI High School and a physical therapy major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jackson of 105 Hudson Ave., West Berlin, N.J.

A business management major, Miss Mehigan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mehigan of 138 Candlestick La., Marlton, N.J., and a 1983 graduate of Cherokee High School.

A business administration and computers major, Miss Evans is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Evans of 37 Glen Eagle Dr., Murrys ville, and a 1981 graduate of Plum Senior High School.

Miss Glendenning, an exploratory major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Glendenning of 8 Treemont Dr., Malvern, and a 1980 graduate of East High School.

The Homecoming Queen and her court were selected by Juniata students from among 18 candidates representing the senior, junior, sophomore and freshman classes.

The campus became a fantasy world with thousands of alumni returning to College Hill for the 1983 Homecoming Celebration. This year's theme, "Fantasy — May All Your Dreams Come True," appeared in a number of events throughout the weekend.

Although bad weather forced the cancellation of the traditional Homecoming Parade, the floats were on display during the football game which Juniata lost to Susquehanna 34-14.

In the Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center however, the women's volleyball team was winning the MAC championship tournament, defeating Gettysburg in the final match.

Other weekend activities included tours of the Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center and open use of its many facilities, an exhibit on Juniata College history in Shoemaker Galleries, the student theater production of The Trojan Women, and the Homecoming dance.

Special features included the annual Founders Club luncheon honoring the Swigart family of Huntingdon and a dessert buffet to pay tribute to Juniata's 1958 football team, the college's last undefeated team (see separate stories).

'58 Squad Honored

On Nov. 5, Juniata College paid tribute to the last undefeated football squad to don the navy and gold. The event, marking the 25th anniversary of the successful 1958 team, was a highlight of Homecoming activities held at the college.

The master of ceremonies at the buffet dessert was 1950 Juniata graduate and WJAC-TV sports director Bill Wilson. On hand from the 1958 squad were: head coach Ken Bunn, team captain Ken Pipery, Bill Berrier, Jim Chesney, Paul Emerick, David Hogan, Frank Rocco, Bob Schwalenberg, Pete Sellers, Don Shover and Bob Sill.

Juniata President Frederick M. Binder presented each individual with a commemorative pewter plate, a certificate of appreciation and photos from the 1958 season.

Also on hand to receive special recognition was the 1983 Juniata Volleyball team. The team won their third MAC championship earlier that evening.

Bill Wilson '50, sports director for WJAC-TV in Johnstown, served as master of ceremonies for the 1958 football team recognition program held Homecoming Weekend. In addition to paying tribute to Juniata's last undefeated football team, Wilson discussed the "highlights" of his athletic career at Juniata.

Volleyball Team Closes Great Year

by David A. Gildea

The clock struck 12 on the Juniata volleyball team at the Dec. 3 NCAA Regional Tournament held in Huntingdon, leaving the young team just one step short of securing a third consecutive bid to the NCAA final four tournament.

Playing the role of the wicked step-sister in this year's Cinderella season was the University of California at San Diego. UCSD ended their season, one week later than Juniata, as the number two team in the nation.

The Indians entered the regional tournament as the number eight team in the nation after receiving a bye in first round play following an impressive Naval Invitational Championship.

As the tournament neared, the regional host Indians were confident that they could get by the Brooklyn Kingsmen in Friday night

Team leader Tracey DeBlase puts one away against Brooklyn College in Friday's first round action.

Freshman Carolyn Stambaugh proved to be a valuable link in the Tribe's 1983 effort.

The team was equally confident that UCSD, the top-ranked team in the nation, would breeze by the Western Maryland club, setting up the rematch of last year's NCAA semi-final match-up. (Juniata was defeated in the 1982 match and had to settle for fourth place in the tournament. You may remember that JC met UCSD in the 1981 NCAA Championship match in Maryville, Tenn., suffering defeat for a second-place finish.)

All of the factors involved made for some tense anticipation and all preliminary signs pointed to top-notch volleyball action.

The crystal ball predictions for Friday's outcome proved correct. Behind excellent spiking and blocking play by freshmen Carolyn Stambaugh and Trish Corl and juniors Ekanong Opanayikul, Peggy Trish Corl shows the jumping ability that has made her a powerful spiker for the Juniata volleyball team.

Evans and Tracey DeBlase, the Tribe overpowered Brooklyn 15-4, 15-10, 13-15, 15-3.

Earlier in the evening, the Tritons of UCSD put away Western Maryland in ho-hum fashion 15-7, 15-8, 15-3. The Tritons, looking sluggish and preoccupied through much of the match, remained in Memorial Gym through much of the Juniata-Brooklyn contest. They left the arena, during the Tribe's fourth game, to chants of, "We want San Diego, we want San Diego," from the partisan crowd.

Without question, there was joy in Mudville Friday night as the Juniata community celebrated victory and looked forward to the UCSD rematch as the first snow of the season covered the campus.

The stage was set Saturday for the event everyone had been looking forward to since the pairings were announced. The crowd was large and vocal. As if to provide one more, "You can do it," the theme from "Rocky" resounded through Memorial Gym as the teams entered.

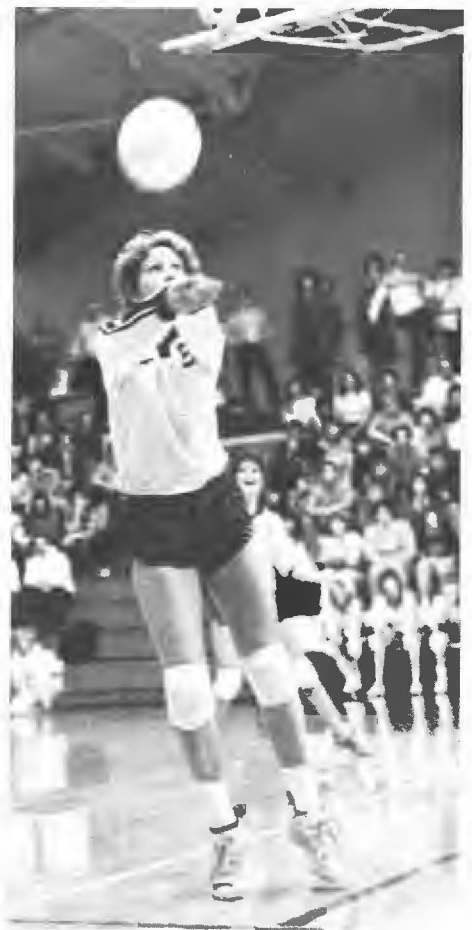

The number one team in the nation, however, was not impressed. These California girls came to play volleyball and play volleyball they did.

UCSD proved why they were the top seeded team in the nation by playing almost flawless volleyball. In three games they had only seven passing errors to 20 for JC.

Ekanong Opanayikul and Carolyn Stambaugh each tallied eight kills. Setters Peggy Evans and Mariella Gacka played very well also, but it wasn't enough to check the red-hot Tritons. Juniata lost in three games, 15-4, 15-4, 15-2.

Following the match, the all-tournament team was announced. Juniata's Trish Corl, Carolyn Stambaugh and Tracey DeBlase were selected by officials, coaches and media representatives. The Tritons also placed three on the all-tourney team.

With all six starters eligible to return next season, the Juniata volleyball future looks bright. A point of interest is that UCSD will only lose one team member to graduation. Look for a rematch in 1984!

Team leader Peggy Evans, one of the top setters in the nation, demonstrates her technique.

Among those selected to the All-tournament team were (right to left) Tracey DeBlase, Trish Corl and Carolyn Stambaugh. UCSD also placed three on the team.

FALL SPORTS REVIEW

While the women's volleyball team was having another successful year on the hard-court, the Tribe football team was experiencing some rather agonizing growing pains.

The Tribe went through an eight game dry spell between an opening victory over St. Francis (38-0) and a season ending win over Upsala (22-6).

Facing injuries and illnesses that sidelined key players and a very tough 1983 Middle Atlantic Conference, the Indians' season proved to be very long, indeed.

In reflection on the 1983 campaign, Coach Rob Ash said, "We lost a couple of tough games early in the season. We didn't have a chance to settle into our offense because our quarterback, Dave Pfeifer, was hurt and didn't have an opportunity to work with the offense much.

"For the two games in the middle of the season against Western Maryland and Wilkes, we had key people out due to illness.

"The next three were just tough games and we played well but came up short."

One bright spot in the 1983 season was the play of receiver Dave Murphy. Murphy broke Indian records and wrapped up his second MAC receiving title. (See related story.)

Following the Upsala victory, Ash commented, "There's a really good feeling among the players and coaches right now. We've overcome a lot of adversity this year. These guys are a team as a result of that."

In looking toward the next season Ash said, "Right now I feel pretty good with a win, and I'm kind of excited about next year. It's possible that we'll lose only five seniors, and one of them, Fred Santarelli, has another year of eligibility and may come back.

"We need to work hard in the Freshman quarterback Todd Kaden looks over the situation in the season opener against St. Francis. The Tribe went on to win 38-0 under the lights of Altoona's Mansion Park.

off-season to get stronger and shore up our secondary. We'll be back," Ash concluded.

The women's field hockey team closed the 1983 season with the best record ever compiled by a Juniata stick team.

The squad closed the season with a 5-2-4 overall mark. The finish earned them the top spot in the Southwest League of their MAC division.

Junior goal keeper Therese Libert finished the campaign as the top goalie in the MAC with 56 saves and a .903 percentage. Also receiving honors was Sue Occiano who was named to the 1983 All-Star team. Receiving honorable mention kudos were Jill Loomis and Terri Sagan.

The field hockey team ended their season with a semi-final championship loss to F & M following a thrilling quarter-final victory over FDU-Madison.

The women's cross country team had a decent season despite some nagging injuries along the way.

Only a few days before the last regular season match, sophomore Kathy Duffy, the Indians' number two runner, went down with an injury.

The Tribe's top runner, Carolyn Andre, however, closed the season by finishing fourth out of 104 at the MAC Championships. Andre finished at or near the top spot in almost every meet in 1983.

The men's cross country team entered the MACs hoping to be at least competitive. With a 19th place finish out of 24 teams, this goal was achieved.

The Tribe's top finisher was Mark

Royer, finishing in the number 72 spot.

The harriers lose only one runner to graduation this year, so look for them to be "in the running" in 1984.

The Juniata soccer team ended another tough season, closing the book on 1983 with a 2-12 record.

The outlook is good for 1984, as experience should begin to pay off for the young booters.

A highlight of the 1983 year was the first annual alumni soccer game held as part of homecoming weekend activities. The event brought back many of Coach Klaus Jaeger's former players.

The future of Juniata athletics looks bright with many, many underclassmen gaining experience on the fields and courts of Juniata College.

MURPHY COMPLETES OUTSTANDING YEAR

by Joseph M. Scialabba '86

For Juniata College junior Dave Murphy, the 1983 football season has been one of both disappointment and accomplishment.

The 6'2", 185 pound receiver from Camp Hill and Cumberland Valley High School fought off illness, injury and the discouragement of an eight-game Indian losing streak in the 1983 campaign.

Despite the setbacks, however, Murphy managed to rewrite two Juniata records and capture his second consecutive Middle Atlantic Conference receiving title as well as All-Conference honors.

Murphy caught 39 passes for 574 yards and two touchdowns in eight MAC games, finishing ahead of runner-up Dan Glowatski of Delaware Valley by 10 grabs.

For the season, Murphy hauled in 46 receptions for 675 yards and three touchdowns, including a 75-yard TD catch against MAC champion Susquehanna.

In his three year career at Juniata, Murphy has 111 receptions for 1,747 yards and 14 touchdowns. This year, he broke records for career receptions and career receiving yardage. Last year, Murphy established new marks for receptions (55) and yards gained (909) in a season.

Dave Murphy

This season, Murphy faced a switch in both quarterbacks and offensive philosophy as returning All-MAC quarterback Dave Pfeifer missed much of the season due to injuries and was replaced by freshmen Todd Kaden and Mike Culver. At this same time, Juniata's new one-back passing set was abandoned by the Indians following a disappointing start and was replaced by a modified veer-formation offense.

Despite the problem of adjusting to three different passers, two offenses, and often double coverage by opponents, Murphy methodically moved toward another great season.

"It is tough getting used to three different quarterbacks in one season," said the Indian record holder, "but we, as a team, made a pretty good adjustment. The switch back to the two-back veer offense gave us a few more weapons to work with."

"Last year I was more of a wide-out while this year I was basically a slot back," Murphy said in comparing his two MAC receiving title seasons. "I had to put-up with some double coverage this season, but not as much as last year. Also, I think we threw a lot more short passes this year."

Murphy, however, not only caught passes for head coach Rob Ash, but ran the ball several times and blocked two field goals. The busy Indian veteran said, "It was a nice mix to get to run the ball, and the blocked kicks; well, I just did my job." Murphy was switched to the designated "kick-blocker" position for the last five games and it paid off on two occasions for the Indians.

Murphy, a marketing and computer science major, has also made his mark on the Juniata baseball diamond. In two seasons at centerfield, he has been one of the Tribe's leading hitters and earned second team All-MAC honors last spring.

Feeling this year's gridiron team "got experience the hard way," Murphy sees next year as maybe being the Indians' big year. And despite his all-around effort, now he wants to contribute more, speculating, "I hope to do some kick returning next season; it's something I've always wanted to do. I'm ready to go right now."

Next year can't arrive soon enough for Dave Murphy, who has already left an engraved mark in the football record books at Juniata College. "A third MAC receiving title would be nice, but I think an

MAC team title would be more satisfying.

Dave is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Murphy of Springhouse Road, Camp Hill, PA.

Editor's Note: Joe Scialabba is a sophomore, media communications and writing major from Huntingdon. He is a student assistant working in the sports information operation at the college. If you had a chance to get back for any of the last three home football games, you heard Joe do his usual fine job as our public address announcer.

Oller Track Dedicated

Some 60 years ago, a young Juniata student-athlete named Jefford Oller '18 sped around a portion of the Juniata College track faster than anyone before or since to set the college record of 21.6 seconds in the 220 yards.

On Saturday, Oct. 15, the refurbished track around College Field was dedicated in memory of Jefford Oller during a brief ceremony at halftime of the Juniata-Wilkes football game. On hand for the ceremony were Mrs. Anne Oller, widow of Jefford Oller; Jack Oller '23, his brother, a former faculty member and current trustee of the college; and Dr. Frederick M. Binder, college president.

After the reading of a citation on the grandstand side of the track, the party crossed the field for the unveiling of a hand-crafted sign near the main gate of the football field.

A native of Waynesboro, Jefford Oller returned to his hometown after graduating from Juniata to become a successful businessman and respected civic leader. An avid traveler, lover of the arts, and follower of Juniata College athletic teams, Oller also served the college as a member of the Board of Trustees from 1966 until his death in 1974.

The track was dedicated in his memory on what would have been his 87th birthday. With the conversions from yards to meters for track events, his record, which stood on its own merit for over half a century, now stands secure from ever being eclipsed by another Juniata runner.

Mrs. Anne B. Oller stands next to the sign at College Field naming the new varsity track for her late husband, Jefford F. Oller '18. The track was officially dedicated in ceremonies held on Parents Weekend.

BASKETBALL TEAM TRAVELS TO BELGIUM

While most of us were spending our holiday with family and friends, the Juniata College men's basketball team spent their Christmas holiday in Belgium.

A 23-member party left New York's Kennedy Airport on the evening of Dec. 16 and spent twelve days in Europe before returning to the U.S. on the afternoon of December 29. The group flew into and out of Luxembourg.

The party was accommodated at the A.D.E.P.S. Sports School in Jambes, Belgium, a suburb of Namur. Namur is a city of about 100,000 people.

The stay was a busy one for the Juniata contingent. The team played six games and took part in a clinic for area coaches given by Head Coach Dan Helm and his assistant Jim Zauzig. The clinic was given during a scheduled practice session on Dec. 24.

The European competition posed many challenges for the Indians. The team played club teams in various communities including Ciney (Dec. 19), Andenne (Dec. 23), and Fleuris (Dec. 28); in addition, they participated in a four-team Christmas tournament in Namur (Dec. 25-26). On the 20th, the Tribe faced the Belgium National junior team in Brussels.

To go along with the heavy playing schedule, the group also kept a full sight-seeing itinerary. They planned day-long excursions to Paris and Brussels. The party also visited the North Sea coast portion of Belgium by the English Channel, as well as a day in the medieval castles of the Belgian countryside.

The trip was a well-planned for and gratifying accomplishment for Coach Helm, who played professional basketball in Belgium for two years prior to coming to Juniata.

Helm said the European tour idea was sparked by an article he read several years ago regarding a trip to Australia by the West Virginia University basketball team that was organized by the Australian National Amateur Sports Association. After some early investigation, Helm found that parties on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean seemed to be very positive about the idea of a Juniata team making a similar trip and the gears of planning started in motion.

Logistical planning was kept to a minimum with the help of Jacques Ringlet in Belgium. A friend of Coach Helm, Ringlet is the coach of the team in Namur and helped to arrange for accommodations and meals in the dormitory setting at the A.D.E.P.S. Sports School. He also assisted in setting up the schedule of games and tours for the party.

This was the first athletic organization from Juniata that has traveled overseas and it is being looked upon as a very positive step for both the college and the basketball team. It will prove to be very beneficial.

"The Juniata name was spread across Belgium, as well as other parts of Europe," said Helm. "The more places we visited and people we interacted with, the more we spoke of Juniata, its location, people, and personality. The trip has not only helped our European image but has also shown the importance we at Juniata place on educating the whole person.

"This trip has been an educational, broadening experience for many of those involved, considering it was the first time out of the state for some, not to mention out of the country," Helm noted. "For most, it was the first time they personally viewed a foreign culture and for some it was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"It was a very exciting trip for our team and we were all anxious for its arrival," Helm concluded. "We are very happy that this trip could be arranged. We are also very proud to have represented and carried the Juniata name to Belgium and Europe."
